ABSTRACT

A guide to planning academic year study abroad by the Institute of International Education (IEE) is presented. It offers relevant items of information on over 1,800 postsecondary study programs in other countries during the academic year. Suggestions on planning for study abroad are included (researching the options, educational choices, travel and living, and IEE-administered programs). Two parts discuss the following: programs sponsored by colleges and universities with U.S. accreditation (worldwide, Africa south of the Sahara, Asia and Oceanic, Europe, Middle East and North Africa, and Western Hemisphere) and programs sponsored by institutions and organizations without U.S. accreditation (worldwide, Asia and Oceania, Europe, Middle East and North Africa, and Western Hemisphere). Information is provided on: overall organization of the program listings; program sponsor and name; location; dates; subjects; credit; eligibility; instruction; highlights; costs; housing; deadline; and contact. Appended is a list of consortia and guidance on how to read the study-abroad literature. Indexes to both sponsoring institutions and fields of study are provided. (SM)

INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

LSE

London School of Economics and Political Science
International Summer School in Economics

Designed by the Economics Department at the London School of Economics, this Program aims to bring students from around the world together to study a subject of international importance in an internationally distinguished setting. To enhance the special character of the classroom experience, senior faculty from the LSE will be joined by selected guest faculty from Europe and/or North America.

Students choose one three-credit course in each of two three-week sessions. Although it is recommended that students take both sessions, provision can be made for those who prefer to take a single course in either the first or the second session. Orientation is not repeated for the second session.

The syllabus in each course derives from a regular LSE degree course, but is adapted to the special needs of intensive teaching. Level 1 courses do not require prior study of economics; mathematics is helpful but not required except for Ec111. Level 2 courses require college macro and microeconomics; college mathematics, particularly algebra and calculus, is needed for Ec202 and Ec221. Teaching methods include lectures and class discussion periods. All courses are assessed by examination for a final letter grade. Courses may not be taken pass/fail.

First Session Courses, June 26 through July 14, 1989

Ec102 Introductory Macroeconomics
Ec180 Political Economy
Ec202 Intermediate Macroeconomics
Ec220 Economics of the Welfare State
Ec241 Economics of Industrial Organization

Second Session Courses, July 17 through August 4, 1989

Ec101 Introductory Microeconomics
Ec111 Introductory Math for Economists
Ec201 Intermediate Microeconomics
Ec221 Finance

Program Fee Coverage

The Program Fee provides full coverage for: all tuition and academic fees; housing in shared student flats during a short London Orientation and for the duration of the academic program; pre-departure and on-site student services; an official transcript for credit transfer and permanent academic records. The fee does not cover transatlantic transportation, meals or personal spending money.

Special Eligibility and Application Requirements

Under an exclusive admissions agreement with the LSE, all North American students are required to apply through the Beaver College Center for Education Abroad. The Program is open to juniors and seniors with a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.3 on a 4.0 scale. Entry into Level 2 courses requires at least 3.3 in macro and microeconomics and college mathematics.

The completed Program Application must be received by . . . . April 1
Early application is advised; rolling admissions runs until places are filled.

ADVERTISING POLICY

Advertising in Academic Year Abroad is open to the U.S. and foreign higher educational institutions and private organizations that sponsor study-abroad programs listed in the book.

The Institute of International Education does not attempt to evaluate programs listed in the book, nor can it verify statements made by advertisers in their ads. Inclusion of a program or advertisement does not imply IIE recommendation, nor does omission imply IIE disapproval. Advertisers are solely responsible for the accuracy of the information in their advertisements.

Program listings are free of charge and are provided by IIE as a public educational service. They are not contingent upon the purchase of advertising space by the sponsor. See Index I: Sponsoring Institutions to find the program listings of the advertisers listed below.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Academic Year Abroad provides the most relevant items of information on over 1,800 postsecondary study programs that take place in other countries during the academic year. They vary in length from an academic quarter (about eight or ten weeks long) to a full academic year or more. The programs listed in PART 1 of this book are sponsored or cosponsored by colleges and universities accredited in the United States; PART 2 lists programs offered by institutions without U.S. accreditation: non-U.S. universities and specialized institutes of higher education, language schools, adult education centers, and other U.S. and foreign organizations.

The information in the program entries is based on a survey conducted in May 1988. Questionnaires were sent to all sponsors of programs listed in the 1988/89 edition of this book and to all organizations that wrote to the IIE study-abroad editor asking to be listed in the next edition.

IIE has published its series of study-abroad guides for over 30 years. U.S. colleges and universities—over 600 of which are IIE Educational Associate member institutions—have traditionally been highly responsive to the Institute's surveys for these books, as have the other U.S. and foreign organizations that offer study programs open to U.S. nationals. Given this invaluable cooperation, Academic Year Abroad is as comprehensive as IIE can make it.

IIE tries to make the information contained in this book as accurate and useful as possible. Bear in mind, however, that information-gathering in publishing takes place long before a book appears—often before program arrangements can be finalized. For this reason, it's a good idea to use this book as a general resource for locating programs of interest. Final and full information on any program, particularly dates and costs, must be obtained directly from the program sponsor.

Students interested in summer or short-term study abroad should consult the companion volume to this book, Vacation Study Abroad, which lists over 1,300 programs sponsored by U.S. and foreign colleges and universities, language schools, private agencies, adult education centers, and other organizations around the world.

To derive maximum benefit from Academic Year Abroad, be sure to read this section, "HOW TO USE THIS BOOK," carefully. It explains how the entries are organized and the various terms used in the program listings.

The special chapter entitled "PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD" should also be reviewed thoroughly. It describes the types of programs available, how to select one appropriate to your needs, how to arrange academic credit for your studies abroad, and a variety of other pertinent topics.

The information contained in this book—complemented by the guidance of an experienced study-abroad adviser if you are currently enrolled at a college—can help you plan and prepare for what may be one of the most rewarding experiences of your life.

Overall Organization of the Program Listings

The programs are arranged first by the geographical region in which they take place: Africa South of the Sahara, Asia and Oceania, Europe, the Middle East, and the Western Hemisphere. Each region is subdivided alphabetically by country and then by city, province, region, or island. Within each city subsection, the arrangement is alphabetical by the names of the sponsoring institutions.

In addition to the specific country and city listings, there is a "Worldwide" chapter at the beginning of the book for programs that operate in more than one region of the world. Similarly, there are "More than One Country" listings at the beginning of each chapter and "More than One City" listings at the front of each country section. Remember to consult these general worldwide, regional, and country sections in addition to listings for specific cities.

Program Sponsor and Name

Each entry begins with a number used to identify the program within the listing sequence and in the indexes at the back of the book. The name of the sponsoring institution is next, followed by the program title.

Many study-abroad programs are sponsored cooperatively by groups of colleges and organizations, or consortia. Consortia with more than five members are listed in Appendix A.

Location

This line identifies the host institution, city and country in which resident study takes place. Many programs include travel to other places; others offer orientation sessions in cities other than those in which the program is based. Orientation and incidental travel are noted in the "Highlights" section of the entry, but the programs are usually listed under the country and city where the major portion of resident study takes place.

Dates

Exact dates are stated if provided by the program sponsor. Enrollment is generally for the full period indicated, unless variations are noted.

Remember that final program dates were often not available at the time our survey was conducted; for current information, contact the sponsor.

Subjects

Courses of study available through the program are listed here, along with information on concentrations and specialization, and the availability of independent study, student teaching, and internships. Consult INDEX II: Fields of Study, for assistance in locating programs in your specific field.

Credit

The availability of academic credit is indicated after this heading. It may be expressed in quarter hours, semester hours, or course credits, depending upon the practice of the program sponsor. Undergraduate credits are listed first, then graduate credits.

Consult your academic or study-abroad adviser about receiving academic credit before you enroll in a program. Take along a list of your degree requirements, courses taken, and credits earned, as well as a list of courses and credits still needed.

Be aware that most foreign institutions do not employ the U.S. system of academic credit and, thus, do not actually grant credit for successful completion of courses. Many of them are familiar with U.S. credit requirements, however, and have indicated the number of credits generally accepted by U.S. institutions for the term, semester, or program listed. Upon completion, the foreign institution may award a transcript, certificate, or diploma listing courses and examinations taken and grades earned.

If receiving credit for your studies abroad is important to you, be sure to clarify all issues relating to credit in advance, particularly if the program you choose is sponsored by a school other than your own. Remember that transfer credit is never automatic; it must be arranged in advance.

Eligibility

If a program is limited to students of the sponsoring institution or consortium, this restriction or preference will be indicated first in bold italics.

The academic level is listed next: freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, graduate students, professionals, or adult students. The term "undergraduates" is used to mean all undergraduates. "Precollege" will generally mean high school graduates who have not yet entered college. "Adults" usually refers to persons age 18 or over with no specific academic background and not currently enrolled in a degree program at a U.S. institution. Some sponsors list a minimum age requirement rather than an academic level.

Other eligibility requirements and course prerequisites are mentioned last in this section and usually require clarification by the sponsor, since space considerations do not permit us to list them fully.

Instruction

The first item provided here is the language in which courses are taught. Where more than one language is listed, consult the program sponsor for exact information. Foreign language courses are usually taught in the language being studied, while other courses may be taught in English. For courses taught exclusively in a foreign language, be sure to determine in advance whether your level of fluency is sufficient.

Entries then indicate the type of courses students attend: courses specifically arranged for the program group (in which most of the participants will be U.S. nationals), special courses for foreigners at a foreign institution (where Americans mingle with other foreign students), or regular courses from the general curriculum of a foreign institution (in these classes, U.S. students can expect to sit next to, and compete with, native students).

The term "foreign faculty" generally refers to instructors native to the host country, while "U.S. faculty" usually means faculty of the sponsoring institution.

For a full discussion of the types of study-abroad courses and programs, see the chapter on "PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD."

Highlights

This section includes information on the year the program was established, orientation, program-related and miscellaneous travel, if any, and the availability of contact with previous participants in the program.

The phrase "Contact with previous participants available" indicates that the sponsor, if requested, will provide contact with a former student—by mail, phone, or in person. Some sponsors routinely invite former students to their orientation sessions. Make every effort to attend these sessions; the information you acquire from other students can be invaluable in helping you select the right program and prepare for a rewarding experience abroad.

Costs

We have asked sponsors to provide a "package amount" for participation in the full program; this is followed by a list of the items it includes. tuition, housing, meals ("most meals" or "some meals," if fewer than three per day are provided), round-trip transportation (between the U.S. and the program site), books, excursions (and/or field trips, if any), fees connected with participation in the program, health/accident insurance, and the ISIC (international student identity card).

A cost amount followed by 1988 in parentheses indicates that fees for the 1989 program had not yet been set at the time information was submitted for this book (May 1988) and that the sponsor gave current-year information instead. 1989 in parentheses following the amount indicates that the sponsor has estimated the 1989 program fees. In either case, the figure given may require clarification and adjustment; always contact the sponsor directly for current information.

If any type of financial aid (other than loans) is available to participants in the program, the phrase "scholarships available" is used. We have indicated the availability of "work-study" in a similar fashion.

Housing

Most programs provide housing for members of the group. Entries indicate the type(s) of housing provided or available. Organizations that do not provide living facilities will generally assist in locating available housing in the area.

Deadline

In most cases, deadlines are for the receipt of completed applications with all necessary supporting material: transcripts, recommendations, deposits, etc. Find out well in advance what application material is needed.

Occasionally programs will admit students after the deadline is past, but usually only when a program has not filled all allotted places. It is best not to count on luck, however. Apply early!

Contact

The primary contact for information and applications is the individual, department, or organization listed first; full addresses, phone numbers, and telex and/or telefax numbers are provided, if available.

Programs sponsored by consortia will often list the administering school as the primary contact, followed by a reference to "see Appendix A" for contact information at member schools. The usual rule in this situation is that students at member schools apply to their campus study-abroad office, while students at nonmember schools should contact the main consortium office or the administering school.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Institute of International Education does not attempt to review or evaluate programs listed in this book. Inclusion of a program does not imply IIE recommendation, nor does omission imply IIE disapproval. Program evaluations and additional information must be requested directly from the program sponsor, NOT from IIE.

PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD

Study abroad can be an extraordinary adventure in which the educational experiences do not start or stop at the classroom door, or even at the edge of the campus. In contrast to the relatively sheltered life found at many U.S. colleges, study in a foreign setting exposes the student to a whole gamut of new cultural experiences—experiences that open up fresh perspectives on international political and economic issues, interpersonal relationships, and ultimate career choices.

Even an adventure, however, benefits from planning. How well you achieve your immediate personal and academic objectives, as well as your long-range career goals, depends heavily on choosing the right country, institution, and program. Because of the complex choices to be made, planning should begin a full year before you expect to depart.

RESEARCHING THE OPTIONS

The range of study-abroad programs available is considerable. Many programs focus on specific academic disciplines, while others feature both academic and language study. A number of programs combine independent study or internships with traditional coursework.

Your choice of program should be determined by a realistic assessment of your academic preparation and objectives. If you are currently enrolled at a U.S. college or university, be sure to consult with either a study-abroad or Fulbright Program adviser, or a faculty member knowledgeable about foreign study programs. The adviser can help determine whether the programs you are considering will mesh with your educational goals—and whether you will receive academic credit for them.

It remains your responsibility, however, to research the alternatives thoroughly: contact the designated persons or departments to request program literature, ask specific questions, and obtain and review background information on the country you plan to visit. Try to get in touch with previous participants in programs that interest you. In addition, it may be helpful to meet with students from other countries to learn what it is like to be a "foreign" student.

Allow plenty of time for this research—and expect to discover exciting educational possibilites you hadn't originally been aware of.

Language Proficiency

Foreign language proficiency is perhaps the single most important factor in choosing where to study. It is essential to be completely realistic about your level of competency. Holding a simple conversation or ordering a meal in another language is one thing; following a complicated lecture and reading scholarly books is something else entirely.

U.S. college-sponsored programs may be conducted in cooperation with a foreign institution or may be taught by foreign faculty. In such cases, the language of instruction is typically the language of the host country. The minimum requirement for most U.S.-sponsored programs is two years of college-level language study or the equivalent.

Study abroad offers an incomparable opportunity to learn the language and culture of another country. In addition to other courses of study, you may want to review the variety of language and culture/civilization programs available at foreign universities and language schools listed in PART 2 of this book, as well as the U.S. college-sponsored programs described in PART 1.

Geographic Location

Geographic setting may be as important as academic characteristics in determining whether a program is appropriate for you. Large cities may offer excellent cultural opportunities but may also be expensive and impersonal. Small towns may offer more contact with local residents and a traditional way of life, but some students may find the provincial lifestyle too limiting.

No foreign study program can be a guaranteed perfect choice, however. Even when your needs are well matched to the program, you may suffer periods of loneliness and disorientation simply because of the unfamiliar environment. Remember that one of the most important lessons to be learned from time spent abroad is flexibility—and a willingness to go on enjoying and learning even when confronting unexpected circumstances.

The Third World

Study in the Third World can be especially meaningful for a variety of reasons. The fact that nearly three-quarters of the world's population live in these nations is bound to have a significant effect on the course of history. From an economic standpoint, it is worth noting that U.S. trade with Third World countries now approaches 40 percent of all U.S. imports and exports. In today's economically interdependent world, knowledge of Third World nations may prove to be a valuable career asset.

In addition, the cultures of the Third World countries pose a sharp contrast to that of the United States. They effectively challenge our customary assumptions about our own society and values and provide a unique perspective on our larger world role.

One legacy of colonialism in the Third World is that the language of instruction is often English, Spanish, or French rather than the native tongue. This generalization does not apply, however, to countries like China, which has an extensive scientific and technical literature of its own, and which draws large numbers of students to study its literature, languages, and cultures.

Disabled Students

Many educational institutions provide facilities for the handicapped. The extent to which these students can be accommodated, however, depends on the nature of their disabilities and the subject to be studied. Because disabled students may require special educational aids or services, they should discuss their needs with the program sponsors and investigate the possibility of obtaining supplementary funds to cover the costs of services required.

Information for the handicapped traveler is available from the U.S. branch of Mobility International (MIUSA), which publishes a newsletter and several booklets. For full details, write to MIUSA, P.O. Box 3551, Eugene, OR 97403.

Adult Learners

While most study-abroad programs are organized with the needs of college students in mind, a significant number admit adults with a personal or professional interest in study overseas. This is particularly true of summer and short-term programs, many of which are sponsored by adult or continuing education schools. The listings in IIE's study-abroad guides indicate whether a program admits adults and/or professionals. Even when the entry states that the program is geared to the undergraduate or graduate level, it may be worthwhile to contact the sponsor to see if adults can be admitted as auditors.

Adults over the age of 60 may be interested in the international programs of Elderhostel, which combine the best traditions of education and hosteling for those of retirement age. For information, write to Elderhostel, 80 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116.

The Interhostel program of the University of New Hampshire is designed for those aged 50 and over. For details, write to Interhostel, Division of Continuing Education, University of New Hampshire, 24 Rosemary Lane, Durham, NH 03824.

EDUCATIONAL CHOICES

Before enrolling in a foreign study program, you must determine its effect on your degree and graduation requirements. Your academic advisers can help evaluate study abroad in relation to your academic needs and may assist in arranging academic credit.

U.S. college-sponsored programs generally award credit. Never assume, however, that credit will be granted automatically, nor that you can wait until you complete the program to establish credit. Each school makes its own rules regarding transferable credits, and, if the program you select is not sponsored by your home institution, academic credit may not be accepted by it.

Once a proposed study program is approved by your adviser—and prior to departing from the United States—follow your school's specific procedure to ensure receipt of credit. It is strongly recommended that you secure a written document confirming that credit will be awarded. At some colleges or universities this may be done through the study-abroad office. At others, it will be handled by the admissions office or registrar. If there is no study-abroad adviser, your academic adviser can provide information.

Many U.S. colleges and universities allow students planning to study abroad to preregister for courses to be taken upon their return. This option should also be discussed with your study-abroad adviser prior to departure.

Types of Study-Abroad Programs

Most undergraduates enroll in programs sponsored by their own or other U.S. colleges. One advantage of U.S. college-sponsored programs is that they allow students to study in a foreign environment while remaining within a U.S. academic framework. Even where much of the actual coursework is taken at a foreign university, academic credit is arranged through the sponsoring U.S. institution. In addition, special courses in the language and culture of the foreign country may be provided, and language requirements may be relaxed. Finally, the sponsoring college usually either provides or helps arrange nonacademic essentials, such as housing and round-trip transportation.

Most programs fall into one of these categories:

1. Study in a foreign institution combined with courses arranged for the group by the sponsoring U.S. institution.

These programs usually require some knowledge of the language of the country. Nonetheless, special university courses for U.S. or other foreign students generally have less exacting language requirements than regular university courses. And some programs offer a choice of foreign institutions, depending on the level of the student's language skills.

One benefit of this type of program is that it lets you study at a foreign institution while meeting requirements for your U.S. degree. It also offers readily available help with any difficulties you may encounter in the foreign courses.

2. The fully integrated program at a foreign university or other college-level institution.

Students enroll in regular academic courses in the foreign institution, where fluency in the language of instruction is expected. Students must be able to follow lectures and take examinations along with natives of the country. These programs can be very exciting and challenging for students who qualify.

Since students enrolled in these programs will not have the opportunity to take any U.S. courses overseas, they must be sure to schedule required coursework at their home campuses.

3. The "island" program, in which all courses are arranged for the U.S. group and taught by faculty members of the sponsoring U.S. school or by foreign faculty engaged specifically for the program.

Some of these programs offer intensive language study for language majors. More often, however, these programs are conducted largely in English. In many areas of the world, they offer the only opportunity for meaningful study for students without a good command of a foreign language.

An advantage of this type of program is that the sponsoring U.S. institution has as much control over the nature and quality of instruction as it has at home. The chief disadvantage is that U.S. students are isolated from the foreign academic milieu and may find themselves isolated socially as well.

A few programs offer only independent study opportunities, in which qualified students carry out preapproved research projects abroad and receive credit from their home institutions. In others, U.S. students enroll in foreign universities and receive credit from their own schools for coursework abroad. Independent study arrangements like these are made on an individual basis by the students and their schools.

Sponsorship by Consortia

Many of the programs listed in IIE's study-abroad guides are sponsored cooperatively by groups of U.S. colleges or consortia. Some are administered through central consortium offices, others by the participating schools who rotate administrative duties among themselves.

It is unlikely to make any real difference to the student whether a program is offered by one school or by a consortium. The chief advantage of cosponsored programs is that they sometimes feature specialized programs that individual schools find difficult to offer.

For schools, of course, the advantage of consortia sponsorship is the reduction of faculty and administrative work and costs. Consortia with large numbers of participating schools are listed in Appendix A of this book. Cosponsoring institutions of programs with five or fewer sponsors are listed in the individual entries. There is an index of all sponsoring institutions at the end of this book.

Direct Enrollment

It is also possible to enroll directly in many foreign universities, language schools, and other educational institutions. Direct enrollment is an option more often chosen by graduate students than by undergraduates, both because graduate students are more likely to be able to profit from specialized study programs abroad, and because many foreign universities require that new U.S. students already possess a bachelor's degree.

To enroll directly in a foreign university, look into the laws affecting higher education in the country where you plan to study. Some countries have quotas for the number of international students at their universities and restrictions on the numbers of foreign students admitted to particular fields, such as medicine, dentistry, the sciences, and law. Because such restrictions may change from year to year, investigate current regulations early in the planning process.

Since admission policies vary from country to country and institution to institution, it is advisable to write directly to institutions you are interested in for specific information on their policies, requirements, costs, and facilities. To ensure a response, enclose an International Reply coupon (available from any Post Office) with your inquiry.

Remember that, since educational systems vary, no foreign degree is exactly equivalent to a U.S. degree. If you are interested in graduate studies abroad, be sure to conduct extensive research on the educational systems of the countries which interest you. Study-abroad advisers can be invaluable in helping you acquire the information you need to make a decision.

Another useful source of information is the World Education Series, published by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO). Although designed for college admissions officers who need to evaluate foreign academic credentials, these publications provide an overview of each country's educational system. Write AACRAO, One DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20038, for a complete list of titles.

Vacation Study Programs

A study program abroad is a highly productive way to spend a vacation, whether from school or work. Many colleges, language schools, and other organizations offer a variety of summer and short-term programs that provide serious academic study for college students, heritage courses for adults interested in finding their roots, technical programs for professionals, and a wide range of courses for those who simply want to expand their horizons.

IIE's Vacation Study Abroad lists over 1,300 such programs. Many of them take place during the summer or during interim sessions in December or January. Recognizing that the desire to learn knows no age or season, however, many organizations now offer study tours and other programs throughout the year.

Internships

Many foreign study programs feature internships designed to provide hands-on experience in a particular field, with placements at museums, schools, government offices, international organizations, etc. Most are developed in close consultation with faculty advisers and are tailored to suit the special needs of the student. An internship's success depends almost entirely on the initiative and creativity of the student.

Because of the growing popularity of internship programs and the special arrangements they involve, you must apply for a position and begin making arrangements well in advance. As with other types of programs, don't forget to clarify issues of costs, credit, salary, and housing. Use the Field of Study Index in this book to locate internship programs.

Voluntary Service Projects

International service projects, also called workcamps, offer opportunities to young people from all over the world to live and work together with local people in community development. Usually no special skills are required. Most projects take place during the summer for two or three weeks. There is no pay, but volunteers generally receive room and board.

FINANCES

Establish a budget to help determine which programs meet both your needs and financial capacity. Package fees for programs sponsored by U.S. colleges generally include transportation to and from the United States, tuition, fees, room and board, and program-related travel. Other major items are books, local transportation, and health and accident insurance.

Be especially careful to find out what program package fees do not cover. Admissions to cultural sites and events, gifts, optional travel, bank charges for exchanging money, and miscellaneous personal expenses are rarely included and can add up to a considerable sum. Always set aside some money for unexpected contingencies; they invariably occur.

The program costs listed in this book should always be viewed as approximate: they were submitted to IIE some 12 to 18 months prior to the actual program dates. Inflation and fluctuations in exchange rates over this period of time may force significant changes in these figures. Again, it is your responsibility to confirm program costs by contacting the sponsor directly.

Large amounts of cash should not be carried abroad. Traveler's checks are available in U.S. dollars and major foreign currencies. International charge cards and bank credit cards can also be used to avoid carrying large amounts of cash. In some countries, hard currency restrictions limit the amount of foreign currency which can be changed back into U.S. dollars, particularly if the original exchange receipts have been misplaced. Do not under any circumstances exchange money on the black market.

Scholarships

At present most financial assistance available for study abroad is for graduate and postgraduate study. Undergraduates with regular university scholarships, however, are generally allowed to use them for their own school's overseas programs. Your study-abroad adviser, financial aid officer, or bursar can advise you on the possibility of using federal and state aid for foreign study.

The Institute of International Education maintains a reference library with extensive scholarship and grant information at its Information Center at 809 United Nations Plaza in New York City. Information is available upon a personal visit to the Center—not by mail or telephone.

Work Abroad

The practice of working one's way through college is not common overseas, although some study programs include nonpaid work experience. Part-time work-study and trainee positions, which pay a small salary, are occasionally available, but cannot be relied upon to cover the bulk of your expenses overseas.

Summer work programs geared towards students, trainees, and volunteers characteristically offer room and board rather than a salary. Archaeological excavations, for example, often fall into this category.

Foreign labor laws are often highly restrictive. Be sure to investigate them thoroughly if you plan to seek work abroad—and don't plan to rely on work in the private sector to pay your way.

TRAVEL AND LIVING

After selecting a study program, it is time to prepare for life in a foreign country. Your study-abroad experience will have greater personal value if you take an active role in learning about the language, history, and culture of the country, as well as current social and political conditions.

Attend any orientation sessions offered by your program sponsors. The history and culture of the host country are usually reviewed in some detail. There may also be language exams and assigned readings. And you may have the opportunity to ask questions about issues that confuse you before they present real problems.

Books, periodicals, plays, films, and museum exhibits can provide additional information, as will the embassy, consulate, or tourist office of the country in which you plan to study.

Residents of other countries are frequently curious about the United States. As a consequence, you can expect to be hit with a barrage of questions about U.S. history, economics, culture, government policies, and current events. To be forewarned is to be forearmed!

Laws and Customs

Orientation sessions usually review the more important laws and customs students must comply with. These are not empty warnings. One of the biggest mistakes you can make is to assume that behavior and actions acceptable in the United States are appropriate everywhere, or that other countries will excuse inappropriate or illegal acts simply because you are a foreigner.

In many countries, for example, local cultural values dictate that certain parts of the body be covered, particularly in sacred places. Flouting such customs is perceived as a deliberate affront. In such situations, verbal protestations can escalate into threats or physical assaults. This is particularly true if the U.S. student is thought to be indifferent to the initial objections.

It is important to realize that civil rights issues are simply not involved. U.S. notions regarding freedom of speech and expression have no parallel in many countries. Even where the potential for violence is not an issue, students should realize that inappropriate behavior will tend to alienate them from the local populace.

Close adherence to the laws of the country in which you are living or traveling is even more important. It is unwise to rationalize that you are committing only a minor infraction when exchanging money on the black market or making purchases for foreign friends in hard currency shops that are off-limits for natives. Breaking the law—even a repressive, irrational, or antiquated one—is still breaking the law and can lead to severe penalties. At the very least, you can expect to be expelled from the program and deported from the country. U.S. programs are there at the sufferance of their hosts, and sponsors will not risk their programs to protect law-breaking students. Do not expect special intervention from U.S. consulates, either.

Narcotics laws are strictly enforced overseas, particularly when the offenders are foreigners. Harsh sentences, including life imprisonment or death, are not unknown, even in countries where natives may break such laws with impunity.

Warnings aside, there are few pleasures to compare with the experience of forming friendships with people who have spent their entire lives in a different milieu and who can communicate whole new perspectives on the most ordinary of life's experiences. Be sensitive rather than brash, and discover what life is like for others on this planet.

Accommodations

Student housing is difficult to find almost everywhere. Dormitory space is often so limited that many foreign universities have strict quotas for the number of rooms allotted to international students. Generally, U.S. students live in apartments, pensions, student hostels, or with families. Be sure to find out whose responsibility it is to make housing arrangements. Check with the program sponsors to see what arrangements they have made, and investigate the available alternatives. And remember to confirm all housing arrangements well ahead of departure.

Passports, Visas, and Vaccinations

Valid passports are required for travel abroad. You may apply in person to a passport agent at U.S. Department of State agencies in Boston, Chicago, Honolulu, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New Orleans, New York City, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, Stamford (Connecticut), or Washington, D.C. Passports are also issued through selected post offices, or by clerks of any federal court or state court of records. Proof of U.S. citizenship (birth certificate, naturalization certificate, or previous U.S. passport), two recent photographs (2" x 2"), and current identification with a personal signature and photograph or physical description (such as a driver's license) are required.

For citizens 18 years or older, a passport valid for ten years costs $35 plus a required $7 execution fee. A five-year passport for citizens under age 18 is $20 plus a required $7 execution fee. You must appear in person if you are applying for the first time, are renewing a passport issued over eight years ago, or were younger than 18 when your last passport was issued. Apply early: processing an application takes four to six weeks—longer during the peak travel season.

A visa is written permission to visit a country granted by the government of that country. Visa requirements vary from country to country and are fully described in Visa Requirements of Foreign Governments (Publication M-264) available at any passport agency or by writing to Office of Passport Services, Room 386, 1425 K Street NW, Washington, DC 20524.

Anyone planning to study in a country for an extended period of time may need to get a special student visa. Information relating to all visas may be obtained from the nearest embassy or consulate of the country concerned. Many visa applications require that you submit passport-type photographs to be kept on file or incorporated into the visa itself. It is always wise to obtain extra prints of your passport photographs for such purposes.

Vaccination certificates for inoculation against yellow fever, cholera, or malaria are required by some countries. Check current regulations with your local public health department.

Medical Insurance and Other Health Concerns

The importance of having adequate insurance when visiting another country cannot be overestimated. Before leaving the United States, check your medical and accident insurance policies to be sure they are valid while traveling overseas. If coverage does not extend to travel abroad, you may want to obtain supplemental medical and accident policies. Holders of the International Student Identity Card receive basic medical/accident insurance coverage for their travel outside the continental United States.

While it is easy to stay healthy abroad, in certain countries this requires taking some elementary precautions. Some countries, particularly those in tropical regions, have bacterial, fungal, and parasitical diseases which can be difficult to cure. Do not hesitate to ask about these during orientation sessions, and take the advice seriously.

If you require prescription medicines, even intermittently, be aware that foreign drugs are not necessarily closely related to those standard in the United States. Drugs may be marketed under different names and may not be available in the strengths you desire. It is wise to bring an adequate supply of any medication you need. Label all bottles clearly and carry copies of the prescriptions to avoid problems with Customs. In the case of narcotic medicines, it may not be prudent to carry additional supplies because of possible Customs difficulties. Reasonable amounts of nonprescription drugs, such as aspirin and stomach remedies, can come in handy when staying in some of the more remote regions of the world.

Finally, if you wear prescription eyeglasses or contact lenses, bring an extra pair and your prescription. This is particularly important with contact lenses, because the specific type of lens you wear may not be available abroad.

Transportation

Many U.S.-sponsored programs include group transportation to and from the program site. In others, students make their own arrangements. A good place to begin researching your travel options is the government tourist office of the country you will travel to; it provides a variety of free travel literature.

Deregulation in the airline industry has resulted in a proliferation of discounted airfares. Shop carefully if you are looking for an inexpensive flight; the cheapest flight is not necessarily the one that best suits your needs. Fares that specify a return date should be looked at particularly carefully, as these may not allow the flexibility you need.

Aim to travel lightly, especially if you will be participating in a study-tour. You will have to carry whatever you bring, so restrict yourself to one or two moderate-sized bags and a small carry-on bag in which to keep valuables, passport, and camera equipment. Insure your baggage and personal effects for the full period abroad. If you bring a camera, purchase a lead-lined film bag. Contrary to airport claims, some X-ray devices are ruinous to film.

Once abroad, railroads are often an economical and convenient way to travel. In Europe and Great Britain, Eurail and Britrail passes offer unlimited train travel at considerable savings to those who travel extensively. Eurailpasses are not valid in Britain but can be used on ferries between Italy and Greece, France and Ireland, and in Scandinavia. Rail passes are available from many travel agencies and must be purchased in the United States before your departure.

If you are considering renting a car, remember that in Britain, many Commonwealth countries, and Japan, cars drive on the left-hand side of the road. Your U.S. driver's license is generally accepted abroad, but it may be necessary to supplement it with an International Driver's License, which provides a multilingual translation of the information on your U.S. license and is available from your local AAA office.

An excellent source of information about student travel is the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE). CIEE publishes the Student Travel Catalog (annual, $1.00 postage and handling), and offers the International Student Identity Card as well as a wide range of student travel services. The International Student ID entitles the bearer to numerous discounts on transportation, accommodations, museum entrance fees, and more. Contact CIEE headquarters at 205 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017, or Council Travel offices in San Francisco, Berkeley, San Diego, Pacific Beach, Long Beach, Austin, Seattle, Boston, Amherst, Providence, and Portland.

IIE-ADMINISTERED PROGRAMS

IIE administers U.S. student applications for the following study programs:

- British Universities Summer Schools, Stratford, London, and Oxford, England. A joint summer program of the universities of Birmingham, London, and Oxford in literature, drama, and history.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY
SESQUICENTENNIAL

Boston University offers its Master of Science in Management degree at three overseas campuses so that students can obtain an American-style education while taking advantage of the opportunity to study abroad. Each program emphasizes an international management focus, and allows students to study full- or part-time, with evening and weekend class options. Each location has its own campus facilities. Internships are encouraged to round out the training process. Students are admitted to the programs in September, January, and April.

The Graduate Certificate in Computer Information Systems program is currently offered at the Brussels program, and will also be offered in London starting September 1989.

Scandinavia! New Vistas For Learning and Life!

Since 1949, we've sent nearly 3,000 young adults on the learning adventure of a lifetime. Our traditional year program features total language and cultural immersion in selected "folk colleges" throughout Denmark, Finland, Norway, and Sweden. Learn through living in Scandinavia among Scandinavians. Individual placement, no prior language training required.

Our new semester program in Nordic and Global Issues also features the Scandinavian "folk college" experience. Several core curricula, taught in English, will be offered in 1989-90. Earn credit directly, or through the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Limited openings; financial aid available.

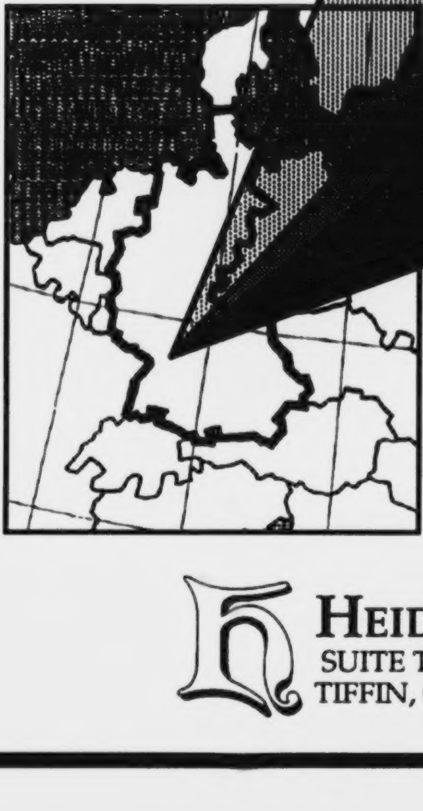
LIVE AND LEARN GERMAN WITH

THE AMERICAN JUNIOR YEAR AT HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY

Heidelberg College offers three unique opportunities to further language proficiency in the heart of romantic Germany. The Junior Year Program enables qualified college and university students to spend their full junior year, a semester or a winter shortened semester at one of Germany's outstanding centers of education and culture – the University of Heidelberg. Since 1958, more than 1000 students from over 250 colleges and universities have benefited from intensive study there.



Today's study-abroad students are looking for that special opportunity to live a language, as well as learn it. Success in accomplishing that may depend upon how well those educational experiences are designed. Write us at The American Junior Year at Heidelberg for details on how 31 years of international experience can help you realize your international-study goals.

LONDON INTERNSHIPS

Business and Finance

Combine a British work experience with small, seminar-size classes taught by senior members of the INSTEP London and Cambridge faculties.

Internships are available primarily in the square-mile City of London — in banking houses, insurance and brokerage firms and financial institutions such as the International Stock Exchange.

For fall or spring semester work, students receive 15 credits (six for the internship and three for each of the three-credit courses, which include: Economics of the European Community, Financial Economics, and Contemporary Britain).

Those opting for a shorter period of study can earn six credits late in the spring (three for the internship and three for the course Contemporary Britain).

Students are housed in the Notting Hill Gate section of London or in Toynbee Hall, within the City. Cooking facilities are provided in both residences.

Costs of the two internship programs are: $5,975 for a semester and $1,975 for the six-week spring option. The fees include housing, tuition and full support services.

Application deadlines for semester study are October 15 (fall) and April 15 (spring); for the six-week spring option, the deadline is February 3.

Undergraduates with a 3.0 grade point average and a background in business, economics or finance should apply by writing to:

INSTITUTE FOR STUDY ABROAD
BUTLER UNIVERSITY
4600 Sunset Avenue • Indianapolis, Indiana 46208

Internships in economics research through INSTEP Cambridge are offered for six (late spring) and seven (summer) weeks. We would be happy to provide information about internship possibilities in this historic university city.

London 1989/90

Take your place in the world's best international law classroom--London.

The London Law Programme of the University of Detroit School of Law offers you an exceptional opportunity to study this growing field of law for either the fall or spring academic semester.

A unique seminar on the international monetary system and international banking and economics introduces the programme. You will then choose from among courses in international, comparative, British and American law.

You will be taught by an outstanding faculty of British and American university professors and lawyers based in London.

You will be able to participate in Moot Court, dine at Middle Temple, one of four Inns of Court, and be affiliated with the University of London Student's Union.

Application for admission to the programme will be accepted from second and third year students. Classes will be held on the campus of Regent's College in central London. Room and board arrangements are available. Tuition costs are low and the programme is approved by the American Bar Association.

DIS Copenhagen

DIS, Denmark's International Study Program, is one of the largest, oldest and most highly esteemed study centers in Europe. It is sponsored by more than seventy American, Canadian, and Australian universities and colleges. The salient features of the program are highlighted here:

- A very wide variety of European courses and concentrations within the Arts, Humanities, Social Sciences, International Business, and Architecture and Design.
- Instruction in English by Danish professors, with credit transfer to the home university.
- Advanced courses designed for undergraduate students at the junior and senior level. Demanding academic standards. Students not willing to do serious academic work should not apply.
- Classroom instruction supported by field studies in Copenhagen and course-related study tours in Scandinavia and to countries in Eastern and Western Europe.
- Unique housing opportunity: Living with a Danish family (or with Danish students in student housing).
- Choice of one semester or a full year.
- Competitive admission. B grade point average required as a minimum.
- Easy enrollment. Comprehensive package covering the academic program, housing, orientation, insurance, and flight transportation (optional).
- Moderate cost. Scholarships and work study opportunities available.

For more information, see the presentation under Denmark in this book. Or ask for the DIS catalog at your study abroad office.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Institute of International Education does not review or evaluate programs listed in this book. Inclusion of a program does not imply IIE recommendation, nor does omission imply IIE disapproval. Program evaluations and additional information must be requested directly from the program sponsor, NOT from IIE.

PROGRAM SPONSORS:

If you offer a study-abroad program that is not listed in this book, you may write to the editor and ask to be put on our mailing list. Please enclose a current brochure or flyer describing the program to be listed. If your program is appropriate for any of the IIE study-abroad guides, a New Program Questionnaire will be sent to you during our next research survey, which takes place in May each year. Please remember that only postsecondary programs up to a year in length are appropriate for listing in IIE books.

Address your request to: Marguerite Howard, Editor

Write for Fully Illustrated Brochure
Director of Admissions
P.O. Box 000, Grand Central Station
New York, NY 10017

This advertisement probably never existed in its entirety. Its components, however, appear in many advertisements, posters, and brochures. Advertisements and posters may have to be somewhat flashy and overstated to catch the eye. Brochures, on the other hand, should be factual, realistic, and totally honest.

Let us analyze the components of the sample ad, line by line, in order to remind ourselves (1) how to read, interpret, and write descriptive literature on study programs abroad, and (2) what questions to ask ourselves and others before enrolling in a program.

TWA. If the advertisement or brochure is "crowned" by TWA, a travel agency, or a similar commercial organization, while the name of the sponsoring U.S. college or university appears in small print elsewhere, whose program is it? And who is responsible for the program's academic standards, if any?

Spend Your Summer in Sunny Spain. A pleasant prospect! But look carefully at the prominence of this statement and ask what the real purpose of this program is: a summer in the sun—or a summer spent studying a foreign language and culture? How many hours will be spent in class and how many on the beach? What is the curriculum? Who teaches what, where, and when?

Live in a Medieval Castle. How romantic! But where is that castle? Is it near that "famous university" or will you have to commute to classes each day? Are the facilities shared with natives of your host country, or will you be living exclusively with other Americans? Are study facilities available? Are there inexpensive eating places nearby?

If family living is suggested, is it a family that has experience with U.S. students? Will they converse with you in the language you are studying? Is the housing offered close to the center of town and cultural events? Is there public transportation after 6 PM or do students have to rely on expensive taxis?

Learn Spanish at a Famous University. Why isn't the name of the host institution given? Foreign universities generally suspend regular operations during the summer months, when their facilities may be available to anyone willing to pay the rent. The "famous university" may not actually be involved in the curriculum at all. The ad may refer to courses arranged by the sponsoring organization or to a special program for foreigners, which may or may not be organized by the host institution.

Some ads refers to "accredited" institutions or programs. To check the U.S. accreditation of a college or university, consult Accredited Institutions of Postsecondary Education, published annually by the American Council of Education for the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation. Information on foreign universities is available in The World of Learning (Europa Publications), the International Handbook of Universities (de Gruyter), and the Commonwealth Universities Yearbook (Association of Commonwealth Universities).

College Credit Available. The crucial questions here are (1) who makes this credit available? and (2) does the student's home institution accept credit offered by this program?

If receiving academic credit for your studies abroad is important to you, check the brochure to see if your school listed as a participating institution or as a school that has accepted program credits in the past. Then consult your academic or study-abroad adviser before you enroll in the program to see whether the credits offered can be applied to your degree program.

Outstanding Faculty. Who are they? Where do they teach? What are their credentials? And, are they accessible to the students outside of class?

International Student Body. Look closely at the roster of students in the back of the brochure. Are they swelling the ranks of "international students" by listing the children of U.S. parents residing abroad? Or will you in fact be mixing with bona fide representatives of other cultures.

Limited Enrollment—All Ages Eligible. Does the statement "limited enrollment" presuppose selectivity when all ages are eligible? How homogeneous is a program open to everybody, unless it includes classes specifically geared to the various academic levels?

It would be more helpful to know the type of student for whom the program is designed—his academic level, educational or professional background, motivation and goals.

Inclusive Charge. There are almost as many variations to this term as there are programs. Is there an estimate of total expenses? Read the small print. Find out exactly what is covered and, more importantly, what is NOT covered. For example, are there periods of time abroad NOT covered by the inclusive fees? Will you have to pay for transportation to and from classes each day?

Ask about refund policies: Is there a nonrefundable application fee? Will tuition and program fees be refunded if circumstances force you to drop out of the program?

Write for Fully Illustrated Brochure. Even organizers of high-quality programs love to publicize them with attractive photographs of breathtaking scenery, lively cafe scenes, marble columns, and gothic spires. Unless the brochure devotes equal space to academic facilities, however, one may well question whether there is any provision at all for serious study.

Director of Admissions. Is there a name of a responsible person or just a title—or not even that? If you search the "fully illustrated brochure" and find no board of advisers, no trustees listed—no names whatsoever—what conclusions would you reach?

P.O. Box 000, Grand Central Station. Is there a street address or just a P.O. box number? Is there a phone number? How can one get hold of the program director in an emergency? (Does a P.O. box number in Ann Arbor necessarily imply University of Michigan sponsorship?)

All these remarks—negative and positive—are a bid for honesty. Descriptive literature on foreign study should reflect the serious intent of the organizers. It should reflect quality, selectivity, and effective academic control. A meaningful and solid program cannot accommodate all tastes, all needs, all levels of maturity. But whatever it is meant to represent should be stated clearly and honestly.

PROGRAM SPONSORS:

If you offer a study-abroad program that is not listed in this book, you may write to the editor and ask to be put on our mailing list. Please enclose a current brochure or flyer describing the program to be listed. If your program is appropriate for any of the IIE study-abroad guides, a New Program Questionnaire will be sent to you during our next research survey, which takes place in May each year. Please remember that only postsecondary programs up to a year in length are appropriate for listing in IIE books.

ACADEMIC YEAR ABROAD 1989/90

IIE's Comprehensive Guide to Academic Year Study-Abroad Programs

Use this book to plan study abroad that is productive for you. Learning while living in another country can provide the most life-enhancing experience of your educational career—if you make the right choice.

ACADEMIC YEAR ABROAD describes over 1300 programs worldwide offered by accredited U.S. colleges and universities. A separate section provides information on 500 additional programs sponsored by foreign universities, language schools, and other U.S. and foreign organizations which are not accredited U.S. higher educational institutions.

The Institute of International Education (IIE), the largest U.S. higher educational exchange agency, has published annual guides to study abroad for 40 years. IIE is a non profit organization with over 600 U.S. college and university members.

If you wish to purchase IIE's guides to study abroad, fill out the enclosed order form for the titles below. Check with IIE for the price of subsequent editions.
